INTRODUCTION

This report presents average annual salaries for full-time employees at CSG-qualified public radio stations in the United States for 2006.¹ The report provides salary information to help station management make decisions on salary scales for their stations.

The average and median annual salaries are presented for each of the job codes listed in the salary questionnaire of the 2006 Station Activities Survey. A total of 35 job codes are identified in this report.

This report consists of two sections: the first presents average and median salaries of all station employees by each of the three licensee types²; and the second provides the salary patterns by each of seven operating budget sizes.

To preserve the confidentiality of individual salary information, the average and median salary of a position that is represented by three or fewer persons is not shown in this report. Likewise, the high and low salary range of each position is presented, but the range is not shown when it represents fewer than four employees.³

The data used in this report were collected through the CPB Annual Station Activities Survey conducted in January through March 2006. In this survey, stations provided detailed information on the average salary for each job code (position).

² The licensees are categorized by the following three types: (1) Community - independently created, nonprofit corporations and foundations; (2) Institutional - colleges and universities; (3a) Local Authority - municipal authorities and local administrative units including school boards; and (3b) State - state boards of education or state authorities and commissions set up to operate public broadcasting stations.

AVERAGE SALARY BY LICENSEE TYPE: 2006

The average salary for all station employees at community licensees ($49,712.76) was the highest among all licensee types. The average salary for employees at State and Local Government licensees ($41,642.48) was the lowest (see Table 1).

The average salaries by detailed position and by licensee type are presented in Appendix Table B.

Table 1
Average Salaries of Full-Time Employees by Licensee Type
CSG-Qualified Public Radio Stations: 2006

Type of licensee	Number of employees	Average salary
Community	1656	$49,712.76
Institutional	1987	$47,370.87
State and Local Government	202	$41,642.48
All licensees	3845	$47,927.56

AVERAGE SALARY BY OPERATING BUDGET SIZE: 2006

Overall, operating budget size of a station affected stations' average salary levels fairly consistently in 2006, ranging from $32,373.20 for the smallest budget size (less than $450,000) to $74,622.39 for the largest ($5,000,000 and over) (see Table 2).

The average salaries by detailed position and by operating budget size are presented in Appendix Table C.

Mean and Median Salary Data - To maintain the confidentiality of individual salary data, an average salary is not shown when there are three or fewer employees in the category under consideration. However, even though detail lines may not show average salaries, these salaries are included in the summary lines

Average salary range - To maintain the confidentiality of individual salary data, adjusted salary ranges are presented. Adjusted ranges are based on an average of the three high and three low average salaries. If three or fewer persons are employed in a job category, the adjusted range does not appear.

Mean and Median Salary Data - To maintain the confidentiality of individual salary data, an average salary is not shown when there are three or fewer employees in the category under consideration. However, even though detail lines may not show average salaries, these salaries are included in the summary lines

Average salary range - To maintain the confidentiality of individual salary data, adjusted salary ranges are presented. Adjusted ranges are based on an average of the three high and three low average salaries. If three or fewer persons are employed in a job category, the adjusted range does not appear.
