President’s Report

Ms. Harrison congratulated Chair Ramer and Vice Chair Ross on their re-election and thanked the Board for its leadership through another year of disruption. She also thanked Amb. Mandell and members of the Audit and Finance Committee for their important role in stewarding the appropriation.

Ms. Harrison referenced her annual report and self-assessment, provided to the Board on October 1, noting that FY 2021 was shaped by the ongoing pandemic; a disputed presidential election; an attack on the U.S. Capitol; the ratification of the election; the development of viable COVID-19 vaccines; the emergence of a virus variant; and a national dialogue about race in America. Public media’s role, with CPB support, was to report on all of these national issues while also connecting locally as stations served their communities with both educational and lifesaving, fact-based content and information. On the local level, CPB moved quickly to help stations combat misinformation with trusted content and provided $275,000 through emergency grants to 14 stations. In a separate funding effort, CPB awarded more than $300,000 to Native Public Media and KTSU-FM for COVID-19 public outreach through 51 public radio stations serving Native and Black communities. Nationally, CPB’s funding of PBS NewsHour and NPR made possible public media’s finest journalism and reporting on the pandemic as well as on issues confronting America’s civil society. She thanked Kathy Merritt, senior vice president of journalism, radio and CSG services, and her team for their efforts.

Ms. Harrison reported that CPB continued its commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion through increased financial support for the National Multicultural Alliance; funding for the public media workforce collaborative, an initiative comprising four stations addressing workplace diversity issues, led by Ideastream Public Media; continued support of Firelight Media and its efforts to increase diversity of public media content. Diversity is also reflected in CPB-supported children’s content including the new series Alma’s Way, produced by Fred Rogers Productions and created by Sonia Manzano (“Maria” from Sesame Street). This month focused on Hispanic Heritage and CPB-funded programs included La Frontera; American Masters and Latino Public Broadcasting’s production of Rita Moreno: Just a Girl Who Decided to Go for It, and VOCES specials. She recognized Kathryn Washington, senior vice president of television content, and her team for their work.

Ms. Harrison reported on CPB’s work with the Joan Ganz Cooney Center to identify how public media can serve a generation of young people – teens and tweens – an effort led by Deb Sanchez, senior vice president of educational media and learning experience, and her team. Ms. Harrison reported on a grant to three public radio stations to implement the Urban Alternative format and reach young multicultural audiences. Ms. Harrison reported on virtual engagement opportunities in the public media system and engagement work surrounding national productions, led by Stephanie Aaronson, senior vice president of engagement, and her team.

CPB continues internal diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) work and has created a new position, senior vice president of human resources and DEI.

Ms. Harrison reported that CPB’s funding and leadership are also essential in advancing public media’s digital initiatives. CPB supports the digital transformation program and is working with stations and national partners through the NextGen TV transition and to achieve a more efficient and cost-effective public media interconnection system. This work has been carried out and will continue with the efforts of vice presidents Beth Jacobs and Beth Walsh, and senior vice presidents Kathy Merritt and Stacey Decker.

Ms. Harrison recognized the work of senior vice president of government affairs, Anne Brachman and vice president of communications, Brendan Daly for keeping members of Congress apprised of the work of public media and its stations and implementing a multi-faceted messaging strategy to amplify the work of CPB and public media partners.

Ms. Harrison provided an update on CPB’s appropriation, noting that Congress passed a continuing resolution to fund the government through December 3 in order to finalize the FY 2022 appropriation bills. These final bills are expected to provide funding for interconnection, Ready To Learn and Homeland Security Equipment. Outside of the regular appropriations process, Congress is also negotiating infrastructure and reconciliation packages. CPB’s $20 million Homeland Security Equipment request is currently included in both the House and Senate reconciliation packages and CPB remains hopeful that this important funding remains in any final negotiated bill. Ms. Harrison concluded her report.

Chair Ramer and board members commended Ms. Harrison and CPB management for their extraordinary work under these difficult circumstances.

Committee Chair Mandell reported that the Audit and Finance Committee met on August 16. Participants included committee members Mses. Calvert and Ross, Chair Ramer, ex officio and board member Ms. Hellreich. FY 2022 Proposed Operating Budget and Resolution

Mr. Tayman reported on CPB’s proposed FY 2022 Operating Budget, which includes the base appropriation of $465 million. CPB follows the statutory guidelines of allocating no more than six percent of the base appropriation for system support, five percent for CPB administration and the rest split 75 percent/25 percent between television and radio.
Chair Ramer called for a motion to approve the resolution as presented. Upon motion duly made and seconded, the resolution was approved unanimously.
