Ready To Learn Station Training & Implementation
Applications
Applications Due: Friday, January 31, 2019 at 12:00 PM EST

I. RFA at a Glance

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB), as part of its 2015-20 Ready To Learn (RTL) initiative funded by the Ready To Learn Television Program of the U.S. Department of Education, intends to fund up to 25 public television stations to receive hands-on training with advanced digital and educational community engagement resources, developed through the RTL initiative, and assistance to develop and implement these resources in low-income communities that they serve, with children ages two to eight, and their families and caregivers (collectively, the target audience). The goal is to strengthen the target audiences’ early science and literacy learning through programs designed by the stations, using these resources.

These RTL Station Training & Implementation Grants are funded through the grant project, “CPB-PBS RTL Content, Community, and Collaboration: Advancing Children’s Learning through Personalized Media Experiences,” which is funded by a grant award from the Ready To Learn Television Program of the U.S. Department of Education (No. U295A100025, CFDA No. 84.295A). The total amount available for up to 25 planning grants is $375,000 and contingent on CPB’s continued receipt of its annual RTL federal appropriation.

Stations selected for funding must use RTL funds to send two staff to an in-person training, conducted by CPB and PBS, in May 2020. The training will include, at a minimum, hands-on instruction in the following RTL engagement resources:

- PBS KIDS Family & Community Learning;
- Playful Learning for Educators; and
- out-of-school time activities and camps.

Following the training, stations will have seven weeks to create a plan to implement at least two engagement resources, selected from those introduced in the May 2020 training, in their communities, subject to CPB’s approval. All implementation activities must conclude no later than September 30, 2020. Extensions may be granted only in exceptional circumstances.

Technical support will be made available to the station following the training and through the implementation period, by CPB, PBS and select mentors, i.e. PBS stations that are experienced in developing and using these resources. At the projects’ conclusion, stations must submit a final narrative report to CPB describing in detail their implementation experience, project outcomes and their plans for using the resources within their communities beyond September 2020.
To be eligible, applicants must:

A. be CPB community service grant recipients in good standing;
B. have recent experience with the target audience; and
C. if selected for funding, confirm that they are eligible to receive federal funding under the compliance rules set forth in the Uniform Administrative Requirements, Cost Principles, and Audit Requirements for Federal Awards; and,
D. not currently receive funding under the RTL Community Collaboratives for Early Learning and Media projects.

CPB Background

CPB is a private, nonprofit corporation created by Congress in 1967. The mission of CPB is to facilitate the development of, and ensure universal access to, non-commercial high-quality programming and telecommunications services. It does this in conjunction with non-commercial educational telecommunications licensees across America. CPB is the largest single source of funding for public television and radio programming, distributing funds via grants, investing in more than 400 local radio and 175 television stations. CPB grants fund activities that include station operations, equipment, development and production of radio and television programming and overall public media support.
II. Objectives & Deliverables

In addition to the work described above, stations selected for funding must:

- send two station staff who will be primarily responsible for the development and implementation of their project plan, to an RTL engagement resources training, held at the 2020 PBS Annual Meeting in Seattle, Washington;

- participate in a virtual community, hosted by CPB, to receive project information, share implementation updates among participating stations, and obtain technical assistance from CPB, PBS and the mentors;

- submit an interim financial report, concurrently with the proposed plan, and a final financial report of project expenses, each certified by an authorized representative of the station; and,

- submit a final narrative report, to include not only the implementation steps and outcomes, but also the impact of stations’ activities on the participant and partners, and future plans for using the engagement resources.

III. Application Requirements

Applicants must separate their technical and cost proposals.

A. Technical proposals must include the following in the order specified.

1. Station Capacity and Commitment

   Applicants must describe their station’s capacity and willingness to work collaboratively with a network of community partners, especially on projects related to science, literacy, and the target audience. Applicants must describe recent partnerships of any kind that have adopted a collective impact (or similar) approach, with multiple stakeholders contributing to an end goal. Include a description of how the partnerships formed, strengthened, and were maintained over the course of the project, as well as lessons learned.

B. RTL Overview

In 2015, CPB and PBS were awarded a Ready To Learn grant from the U.S. Department of Education’s Office of Innovation and Improvement. The five-year grant funds CPB and PBS’ innovative science and literacy media initiative to support the learning needs of children in low-income communities.

CPB and PBS have been working with experts in early learning to create new science and literacy-based programming, mobile apps and online games. The grant has funded new content for PBS KIDS series such as The Cat in the Hat Knows a Lot About That! and Ready Jet Go!, as well as new media properties, Molly of Denali and Elinor Wonders Why, which focus on scientific inquiry and literacy, respectively.

CPB and PBS are leveraging this content to develop personalized learning experiences for children and provide meaningful data to parents, caregivers and teachers. Key partners include the National Association for the Education of Young Children, the School of Education at Boston University, as well as national advisors from a wide range of organizations dedicated to supporting the early learning needs of children, families and educators.

CPB is also working with the Education Development Center and a consortium of research partners to implement a multi-year research plan. As part of the plan, independent researchers are evaluating the effectiveness of the learning resources developed through this project, and their impact on supporting school readiness for children, families and communities.

The grant also provides resources to PBS stations to establish community-based networks of strategic local and national partnerships devoted to early learning, focused on under-resourced children and families. The first phase of this work started in 11 high-need communities in partnership with PBS stations, including: Austin, TX (KLRU); Boston, MA (WGBH); Cleveland, OH (WVIZ/PBS ideastream); Cookeville, TN (WCTE); Detroit, MI (Detroit Public Television); Jackson, MS (Mississippi Public Broadcasting); Lexington, KY (Kentucky Educational Television); Los Angeles, CA (PBS SoCal); Pittsburgh, PA (WQED); Tacoma, WA (KBTC); and Tallahassee, FL (WFSU).

With the second phase, five additional stations participated, including: WFYI (Indianapolis, IN); Nine Network (St. Louis, MO); Iowa Public Television (Storm Lake, IA); OETA (Oklahoma City, OK); and VegasPBS (Las Vegas, PBS). After a planning grant process in Year 3, a final cohort of 14 stations: Alaska Public Media (Anchorage, AK); Alabama Public Television (Carbon Hill and Oakman, AL); Arizona PBS (Phoenix, AZ); Georgia Public Broadcasting (Forest Park, GA); Louisiana Public Broadcasting (Baton Rouge, LA); Maryland Public Television (Baltimore, MD); UNC-TV (Dudley, NC); WCNY (Syracuse, NY); WHRO (Norfolk, VA); WHUT (Washington, DC); WIPB (Muncie, IN); WLVT (South Bethlehem, PA); WNET (Bronx, NY); Wisconsin PBS (Cashton and Westby, WI). These stations partnered with a variety of organizations, such as schools, public libraries, science centers, health clinics and housing agencies that serve under-resourced populations.
